

can participate in a special citizen science project to view clouds from above and below. Join us to observe clouds using a free and easy-to-use app on a smartphone or tablet photograph clouds, record sky observations and compare them with NASA satellite images.

and how you family can become cloud citizen scientists:
www.youtube.com/watch?v=TNc5qjj8ZZE

Image: NASA Earth Observatory.

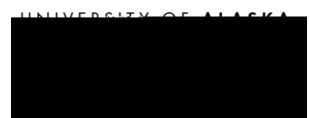

with the GLOBE Observer app in this video:
www.youtube.com/watch?v=cZM3PO5hoHU

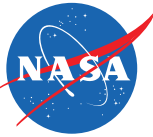

observer.globe.gov/about/get-the-app

The app will let you record your cloud observations. You can also make observations of land cover, trees, and mosquito habitats as a guide to making your observations and learn more about clouds!

observer.globe.gov/do-globe-observer/do-more/at-home

You Can Help NASA Study Aerosols

Aerosols are very small particles floating in the sky.
Although they occur in nature (like pollen), aerosols can also

